

United States District Court
For the Northern District of California

1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9
10
11
12
13
14
15
16
17
18
19
20
21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA
SAN JOSE DIVISION

NATALIA BRUTON, individually and on behalf)	Case No.: 12-CV-02412-LHK of all others similarly situated,)
)
Plaintiff,) ORDER DENYING PLAINTIFF'S ) MOTION FOR PARTIAL SUMMARY
v.) JUDGMENT, AND GRANTING ) DEFENDANT'S MOTION FOR GERBER PRODUCTS COMPANY,) SUMMARY JUDGMENT
)
Defendant.)
_____)

Plaintiff Natalia Bruton (“Bruton”) has brought the instant lawsuit against Gerber Products Company (“Gerber”), alleging that Gerber violated state law by making unlawful and misleading claims on its food product labels. Before the Court are Bruton’s Motion for Partial Summary Judgment, ECF No. 140 (“Bruton MSJ”), and Gerber’s Motion for Summary Judgment, ECF No. 141 (“Gerber MSJ”). Having considered the submissions of the parties, the relevant law, and the record in this case, the Court hereby DENIES Bruton’s Motion for Partial Summary Judgment and GRANTS Gerber’s Motion for Summary Judgment.

I. BACKGROUND
A. Factual Background

1 Gerber, a private corporation with principal place of business in Fremont, Michigan, claims
 2 to be “the world’s most trusted name in baby food,” and reportedly controls between seventy and
 3 eighty percent of the baby food market in the United States. Second Amended Complaint
 4 (“SAC”), ECF No. 62 ¶¶ 21, 27. Gerber packages and sells retail food products, such as puree 5 baby food, snacks, yogurts, side dishes, and beverages, specifically intended for infants and 6 children under two years of age. Id. ¶ 28. Gerber organizes its products by “stages,” including:
 7 “Birth+,” “Supported Sitter,” “Sitter,” “Crawler,” “Toddler,” and “Preschooler.” Id. All of the 8 Gerber product categories other than “Preschooler” describe children under two years of age. Id.

9 Bruton is a California resident who is “concerned about the nutritional content of the food
 10 she purchase[s] for her child’s consumption.” SAC ¶¶ 20, 81. At various times within the past 11 several years, Bruton allegedly purchased many of Gerber’s food products that are intended for 12 children under the age of two. Id. ¶¶ 20, 82. Specifically, Bruton purchased the following products
 13 (“Purchased Products”):

- 14 (1) Gerber Nature Select 2nd Foods Fruit—Banana Plum Grape;
- 15 (2) Gerber Nature Select 2nd Foods Fruit—Apples and Cherries;
- 16 (3) Gerber Nature Select 2nd Foods Vegetables—Carrots;
- 17 (4) Gerber Nature Select 2nd Foods Spoonable Smoothies—Mango;
- 18 (5) Gerber Nature Select 2nd Foods Vegetables—Sweet Potatoes & Corn;
- 19 (6) Gerber Organic SmartNourish 2nd Foods—Banana Raspberry Oatmeal;
- 20 (7) Gerber Organic SmartNourish 2nd Foods—Butternut Squash & Harvest Apple with 21 Mixed Grains; and
- 22 (8) Gerber Organic SmartNourish 2nd Foods—Farmer’s Market Vegetable Blend with 23 Mixed Grains.

24 See Stipulated Chart of Products at Issue in This Case (“Chart”), Ex. A. to ECF No. 117 at 1-3. In 25 addition to bringing claims regarding the Purchased Products, Bruton also asserts claims related to 26 dozens of additional products that Bruton alleges make similar label misrepresentations and violate
 27

1 the same federal and California labeling laws. SAC ¶ 3. Bruton refers to these additional products
2 as the “Substantially Similar Products.” Id.; see also Chart at 1-4.

3 Before purchasing Gerber’s products for her child, Bruton allegedly read and relied on 4 Gerber’s labels, which she contends are “misbranded.” SAC ¶¶ 7, 17, 83. At the point of sale,
5 Bruton contends that she “did not know, and had no reason to know, that Gerber’s products were 6 misbranded” and “would not have bought the products had she known the truth about them.” Id.
7 ¶ 86. Bruton alleges that Gerber made, and continues to make, two types of unlawful and 8 deceptive claims on its product labels: “nutrient content claims,” id. ¶¶ 59-68, and “sugar-related 9 claims,” id. ¶¶ 69-80.

10 1. Nutrient Content Claims

11 First, Bruton challenges Gerber’s use of “nutrient content claims,” which are claims about 12 specific nutrients contained in a product that, pursuant to section 403 of the Food, Drug, and 13 Cosmetic Act (“FDCA”), must be made in accordance with federal regulations. SAC ¶¶ 51-53; see 14 21 U.S.C. § 343(r)(1)(A) (defining “nutrition levels and health-related claims” as pertaining to “a 15 food intended for human consumption which is offered for sale and for which a claim is made in 16 the label or labeling of the food which expressly or by implication . . . characterizes the level of any 17 nutrient”). California expressly adopted the requirements of section 403 of the FDCA in section
18 110670 of the Sherman Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Law (the “Sherman Law”). See Cal. Health &
19 Safety Code § 110670 (“Any food is misbranded if its labeling does not conform with the 20 requirements for nutrient content or health claims as set forth in” 21 U.S.C. § 343(r)).

21 Bruton alleges that Gerber makes nutrient content claims on virtually all Gerber food
22 products, despite the fact that the Food and Drug Administration (“FDA”) authorizes nutrient
23 content claims on foods for adults that are not permitted on foods for children under age two. See 24 SAC ¶ 60 (“Nutrient content claims on products intended to be consumed by children under two 25 are barred because the nutritional needs of children are very different from those of adults, and thus 26 such nutritional claims on infant and toddler food can be highly misleading.”); see 21 C.F.R.
27 § 101.13(b)(3) (“Except for claims regarding [certain] vitamins and minerals . . . , no nutrient
28

1 content claims may be made on food intended specifically for use by infants and children less than 2 2 years of age unless the claim is specifically provided for” by particular regulations).

3 Bruton specifically asserts that Gerber makes misbranded nutrient content claims that fall
4 into three categories: (a) “Excellent Source” and “Good Source” claims; (b) “Healthy” claims; and 5 (c) “No Added Sugar” claims.

- 6
- 7 • “Excellent Source” and “Good Source” claims: Bruton contends that Gerber
8 food products intended for children under two that claim to be an “Excellent
9 Source” or a “Good Source” of various vitamins and minerals are “misbranded
10 within the meaning of the FDCA § 403(r)(1)(A) and 21 U.S.C. § 343(r)(1)(A)
11 because their labeling includes unauthorized nutrient content claims.” SAC 12 ¶ 59(a).
 - 13 • “Healthy” claims: Bruton also asserts that Gerber food products intended for 14 children under two that make statements such as “As Healthy As Fresh,”
15 “Nutrition for Healthy Growth & Natural Immune Support,” and “Supports 16 Healthy Growth & Development” are misbranded because they bear the nutrient 17 content claim “healthy,” despite the fact that federal regulations do not allow 18 such claims for products specifically intended for children under two years of 19 age. Id. ¶ 59(b).
 - 20 • “No Added Sugar” claims: Bruton further alleges that Gerber food products that 21 claim to have “No Added Sugar” or “No Added Refined Sugar” are misbranded
22 because “[s]uch nutrient content claims may not be made on food products
23 intended for children under two.” Id. ¶ 59(c).

2. Sugar-Related Claims

19 Bruton additionally alleges that many of Gerber’s products that are labeled with a “No
20 Added Sugar” or “No Added Refined Sugar” nutrient content claim contain sufficiently high levels
21 of calories that federal law requires that the claims be accompanied by a disclosure statement
22 warning of the higher caloric level of the products. SAC ¶ 69 (citing 21 C.F.R. § 101.60(c)(2)).
23 Because Gerber does not place a disclosure statement on food products containing sufficient
24 calories to trigger the FDA’s disclosure requirement, Bruton asserts that Gerber’s product labels
25 violate California law. Id. ¶¶ 69-74. Bruton states: “Because consumers may reasonably be 26 expected to regard terms that represent that the food contains ‘no added sugar’ or sweeteners as 27 indicating a product which is low in calories or significantly reduced in calories, consumers are 28 misled when foods that are not low-calorie as a matter of law are falsely represented.” Id. ¶ 76.

1 B. Procedural History

2 Bruton filed her initial Complaint against Gerber, Nestlé Holdings, Inc., and Nestlé USA,
3 Inc. on May 11, 2012. ECF No. 1. On July 2, 2012, Bruton filed a Notice of Voluntary Dismissal
4 of Defendant Nestlé Holdings, Inc. ECF No. 9. Gerber and Nestlé USA, Inc. then filed a Motion
5 to Dismiss on August 31, 2012. ECF No. 18. Rather than responding to the Motion to Dismiss,
6 Bruton filed a First Amended Complaint (“FAC”) on September 21, 2012. ECF No. 26.

7 Gerber and Nestlé USA, Inc. subsequently withdrew their Motion to Dismiss the initial 8 Complaint as moot, ECF No. 27, and filed a Motion to Dismiss the FAC, ECF No. 28. On 9 September 6, 2013, the Court granted in part and denied in part Gerber and Nestlé USA, Inc.’s
10 Motion to Dismiss. ECF No. 57. Bruton filed the SAC on October 7, 2013, this time naming 11 Gerber as the sole defendant.¹ See SAC. In the SAC, Bruton alleges the following causes of 12 action: (1) violation of California’s Unfair Competition Law (“UCL”), Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code
13 § 17200 et seq., for unlawful, unfair, and fraudulent business acts and practices, SAC ¶¶ 114-40;
14 (2) violation of California’s False Advertising Law (“FAL”), Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500 et 15 seq., for misleading, deceptive, and untrue advertising, SAC ¶¶ 141-56; and (3) violation of the 16 Consumers Legal Remedies Act (“CLRA”), Cal. Civ. Code § 1750 et seq., SAC ¶¶ 157-73. Gerber
17 filed a Motion to Dismiss the SAC on October 31, 2013, ECF No. 65, which the Court granted in 18 part and denied in part on January 15, 2014, ECF No. 83.

19 On January 10, 2014, Bruton moved for class certification, seeking to certify both a 20 damages and an injunctive relief class. ECF No. 82. Gerber filed an opposition on March 11, 21 2014, ECF No. 88, and Bruton replied on April 3, 2014, ECF No. 110.² On June 23, 2014, the 22 Court denied class certification, concluding that neither proposed class was ascertainable. See ECF
23 No. 128 at 14 (“The number of products at issue in this case, the varieties included and not 24 included in the class definition, the changes in product labeling throughout the class period, the

25 _____
26 ¹ On November 8, 2013, the parties stipulated to the dismissal of Nestlé USA, Inc. with prejudice. ECF No. 75.

27 ² On May 9, 2014, the parties stipulated to a “list of products still at issue in this case.”
28 ECF No. 117 at 1. The list included the eight Purchased Products enumerated above. See Chart at 1-3.

1 varied and uncertain length of time it takes for products with new labels to appear on store shelves,
2 and the fact that the same products were sold with and without the challenged label statements
3 simultaneously make Plaintiff's proposed class identification method administratively
4 unfeasible.").

5 On October 24, 2014, Bruton filed the instant Motion for Partial Summary Judgment, see
6 Bruton MSJ, and Gerber filed the instant Motion for Summary Judgment, see Gerber MSJ. The 7 parties filed their respective oppositions on November 14, 2014. ECF No. 147 ("Gerber Opp.");
8 ECF No. 150 ("Bruton Opp."). Gerber replied on November 25, 2014, ECF No. 152 ("Gerber
9 Reply"), and so too did Bruton on November 26, 2014, ECF No. 154 ("Bruton Reply").

10 II. LEGAL STANDARD

11 Summary judgment is appropriate if, viewing the evidence and drawing all reasonable 12 inferences in the light most favorable to the nonmoving party, there are no genuine disputes of 13 material fact, and the movant is entitled to judgment as a matter of law. Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(a);
14 Celotex Corp. v. Catrett, 477 U.S. 317, 321 (1986). At the summary judgment stage, the Court 15 "does not assess credibility or weigh the evidence, but simply determines whether there is a 16 genuine factual issue for trial." House v. Bell, 547 U.S. 518, 559-60 (2006). A fact is "material" if 17 it "might affect the outcome of the suit under the governing law," and a dispute as to a material fact 18 is "genuine" if there is sufficient evidence for a reasonable trier of fact to decide in favor of the 19 nonmoving party. Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 248 (1986).

20 The moving party bears the initial burden of identifying those portions of the pleadings,
21 discovery, and affidavits that demonstrate the absence of a genuine issue of material fact. Celotex,
22 477 U.S. at 323. Where the moving party will have the burden of proof on an issue at trial, it must 23 affirmatively demonstrate that no reasonable trier of fact could find other than for the moving 24 party. Id. at 322-23. But on an issue for which the opposing party will have the burden of proof at 25 trial, the party moving for summary judgment need only point out that "the nonmoving party has 26 failed to make a sufficient showing on an essential element of her case with respect to which she 27 has the burden of proof." Id. at 323. Once the moving party meets its initial burden, the

1 nonmoving party must set forth, by affidavit or as otherwise provided in Rule 56, “specific facts
2 showing that there is a genuine issue for trial.” Anderson, 477 U.S. at 250.

3 If evidence produced by the moving party conflicts with evidence produced by the 4 nonmoving party, a court must assume the truth of the evidence set forth by the nonmoving party
5 with respect to that fact. See Leslie v. Grupo ICA, 198 F.3d 1152, 1158 (9th Cir. 1999). “Bald
6 assertions that genuine issues of material fact exist,” however, “are insufficient.” See Galen v.
7 Cnty. of L.A., 477 F.3d 652, 658 (9th Cir. 2007); see also United States ex rel. Cafasso v. Gen.
8 Dynamics C4 Sys., Inc., 637 F.3d 1047, 1061 (9th Cir. 2011) (“To survive summary judgment, a
9 plaintiff must set forth non-speculative evidence of specific facts, not sweeping conclusory
10 allegations.”). “If the evidence is merely colorable, or is not significantly probative, summary
11 judgment may be granted.” Anderson, 477 U.S. at 249-50 (citations omitted).

12 When, as here, the parties have filed cross-motions for summary judgment, the Court 13 “review[s] each motion for summary judgment separately, giving the nonmoving party for each 14 motion the benefit of all reasonable inferences.” Ctr. for Bio-Ethical Reform, Inc. v. L.A. Cnty.
15 Sheriff Dep’t, 533 F.3d 780, 786 (9th Cir. 2008). In so doing, the Court “must consider each 16 party’s evidence, regardless under which motion the evidence is offered.” Las Vegas Sands, LLC
17 v. Nehme, 632 F.3d 526, 532 (9th Cir. 2011).

18 III. DISCUSSION

19 Gerber advances several bases on which the Court may grant summary judgment in its 20 favor. First, Gerber argues that Bruton lacks Article III and statutory standing to proceed under the 21 UCL, FAL, and CLRA because there is no evidence that Bruton actually bought any of the 22 Purchased Products or, if Bruton did, that she suffered any injury as a result of the label statements.
23 Gerber MSJ at 7-14. Second, even if Bruton could establish standing, Gerber asserts that there is 24 no evidence Bruton is entitled to any remedy under the UCL, FAL, and CLRA. Id. at 14-20. As to 25 restitution or damages, Gerber says that there is no evidence quantifying any alleged price
26 premium paid by Bruton as a result of Gerber’s label statements. Id. at 15-17. Nor is there any 27 evidence, Gerber contends, that Bruton is entitled to injunctive relief. Id. at 17-20. Lastly, Gerber
28

1 argues that Bruton’s UCL, FAL, and CLRA claims fail as a matter of law because there is
2 insufficient evidence that reasonable consumers likely would have been misled by Gerber’s label
3 statements. Id. at 20-22. Bruton, for her part, asserts that partial summary judgment is appropriate
4 as to her UCL “unlawful” claim because there is no genuine dispute that Gerber’s nutrient content
5 claims violate 21 C.F.R. § 101.13(b)(3), which generally prohibits nutrient content claims on food
6 products intended for children ages two and younger, and the Sherman Law. Bruton MSJ at 7-10.

7 For the reasons stated below, the Court concludes there is insufficient evidence that the 8 nutrient content and sugar-related claims on the challenged Gerber products were likely to mislead
9 reasonable consumers and that the label statements were therefore unlawful on that basis. Because 10 Gerber has shown an absence of a genuine dispute of material fact on these points, the Court
11 GRANTS Gerber’s Motion for Summary Judgment. The Court need not address the other bases 12 Gerber advances in its summary judgment motion or Bruton’s counterarguments thereto. The 13 Court necessarily DENIES Bruton’s Motion for Partial Summary Judgment.

14 A. Statutory Framework

15 Federal law gives the FDA “the responsibility to protect the public health by ensuring that 16 ‘foods are safe, wholesome, sanitary, and properly labeled.’” Lockwood v. Conagra Foods, Inc., 17 597 F. Supp. 2d 1028, 1030 (N.D. Cal. 2009) (quoting 21 C.F.R. § 393(b)(2)(A)). Under the 18 FDCA, food is “misbranded” if its labeling is “false or misleading in any particular.” 21 U.S.C.
19 § 343(a)(1). As relevant here, federal regulations generally prohibit nutrient content claims on 20 food products intended for children ages two and younger. See 21 C.F.R. § 101.13(b)(3) (“Except 21 for claims regarding [certain] vitamins and minerals . . . no nutrient content claims may be made on 22 food intended specifically for use by infants and children less than 2 years of age unless the claim
23 is specifically provided for” by particular regulations). In addition, federal regulations generally
24 require that sugar-related claims on food products be accompanied by a disclosure statement
25 warning of the products’ high caloric content. See 21 C.F.R. § 101.60(c)(2).

26 California, through the Sherman Law, has expressly adopted the federal labeling
27 requirements as its own. According to that statute, “All food labeling regulations and any 28

1 amendments to those regulations adopted pursuant to the federal act . . . shall be the food
 2 regulations of [California].” Cal. Health & Safety Code § 110100(a). California has also enacted a 3 number of laws and regulations that adopt and incorporate specific federal food laws and
 4 regulations. See, e.g., id. § 110660 (“Any food is misbranded if its labeling is false or misleading
 5 in any particular.”); id. § 110670 (“Any food is misbranded if its labeling does not conform with 6 the requirements for nutrient content or health claims as set forth in” 21 U.S.C. § 343(r)).

7 Against that statutory backdrop, Bruton’s lawsuit purports to have “two distinct facets.”
 8 SAC ¶ 7. In particular, Bruton argues that Gerber has violated the UCL, FAL, and CLRA because 9 the nutrient content and sugar-related claims on the challenged Gerber products are (1) misbranded
 10 and (2) misleading. Id. ¶¶ 7-19. Misbranding, says Bruton, is actionable on its own “without any 11 allegations of deception.” Id. ¶ 11. The Court first addresses the question of deception.

12 B. Whether Gerber’s Labels Are Deceptive

13 Bruton’s UCL, FAL, and CLRA claims are governed by the “reasonable consumer
 14 standard,” which requires evidence that “members of the public are likely to be deceived.”
 15 Williams v. Gerber Prods. Co., 552 F.3d 934, 938 (9th Cir. 2008) (internal quotation marks 16 omitted). To survive summary judgment, Bruton “must produce evidence showing ‘a likelihood of 17 confounding an appreciable number of reasonably prudent purchasers exercising ordinary care.’” 18 Clemens v. DaimlerChrysler Corp., 534 F.3d 1017, 1026 (9th Cir. 2008) (quoting Brockey v.
 19 Moore, 107 Cal. App. 4th 86, 99 (2003)). Put another way, Bruton must show “it is probable that a 20 significant portion of the general consuming public or of targeted consumers, acting reasonably in 21 the circumstances, could be misled.” Lavie v. Procter & Gamble Co., 105 Cal. App. 4th 496, 507
 22 (2003). Although surveys and expert testimony regarding consumer expectations are not required,
 23 “a few isolated examples of actual deception are insufficient” in the Ninth Circuit. Clemens, 534
 24 F.3d at 1026 (internal quotation marks omitted). Whether a business practice is deceptive is 25 typically, but not always, a question of fact for the jury to decide. See Williams, 552 F.3d at 938.

26 Bruton’s evidence is insufficient to create a genuine dispute of material fact. In her
 27 Opposition, Bruton asserts that “both sides have presented evidence as to whether Gerber’s 28

1 labeling was misleading to a reasonable consumer.” Bruton Opp. at 22. In support of this
2 assertion, Bruton cites her deposition testimony but omits any pincite. See id. Tellingly, the only
3 portion of Bruton’s deposition that she quotes does not even suggest that she thought Gerber’s
4 label statements were untrue. Cf. Deposition of Natalia Bruton, ECF No. 151-1, at 65 (“I’m not
5 sure whether [Gerber’s label statements] are true or not.”). Rather, Bruton says she found Gerber’s
6 labels “misleading” because they “make you believe that their product, like I said, has something
7 that Beech-Nut’s doesn’t have,” referring to a Gerber competitor. Id. at 64. Specifically, Bruton
8 continued, Gerber’s labels “make[] you think that it has a higher vitamin content, no added sugar, 9 you know, just things on there that . . . Beech-Nut doesn’t say.” Id. at 65. Although couched in 10 language of misrepresentation, this testimony suggests only that Bruton relied on Gerber’s label
11 statements in making her purchasing decision vis-à-vis Beech-Nut.

12 Even assuming that Bruton’s testimony amounts to evidence of actionable deception,
13 binding Ninth Circuit precedent requires the Court to conclude that Bruton’s own testimony, 14 without more, is not enough to survive summary judgment. As the Ninth Circuit explained in 15 Clemens, “a few isolated examples of actual deception are insufficient” to survive summary
16 judgment. 534 F.3d at 1026 (internal quotation marks omitted); see also Ries v. Ariz. Beverages
17 USA LLC, No. 10-01139 RS, 2013 WL 1287416, at *6-7 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 28, 2013) (granting 18 summary judgment where defendants’ owner testified that some consumers of AriZona Iced Tea
19 “were confused by the term a hundred percent natural” because such testimony, without more,
20 “does not demonstrate that it is probable that a significant portion of the consuming public could be 21 confused by the ‘all natural’ labeling of defendants’ products”).

22 The additional “evidence” offered by Bruton falls short. Without citation, Bruton claims
23 that “FDA’s regulations and its subsequent warning letters are evidence of how reasonable 24 consumers would view the labels here.” Bruton Opp. at 22. These vague references are 25 insufficient. See Clemens, 534 F.3d at 1026 (affirming a grant of summary judgment on fraud-
26 based UCL claim where “[a]side from his bare allegations, Clemens has produced no evidence to 27 suggest that a reasonable consumer would have expected or assumed any particular head gasket
28

1 lifespan in excess of the warranty period”). Bruton’s failure to offer any evidence is not for want
2 of opportunity. Indeed, Bruton does not refute Gerber’s contention that “since the Court denied
3 Plaintiff’s motion for class certification”—which occurred in June 2014, two months before the 4 close of fact discovery and three months before the close of expert discovery—Bruton “has 5 conducted no further discovery.” Gerber MSJ at 1. Furthermore, Bruton points to nothing in her
6 experts’ declarations or testimony that evidences a likelihood of deception. In fact, Dr. Edward 7 Scarbrough, one of Bruton’s experts, testified that many of Gerber’s label statements are not
8 misleading. See Deposition of Edward Scarbrough, ECF No. 146-13, at 55-56 (finding “nothing”
9 misleading about the label statements on Gerber Nature Select 2nd Foods Vegetables—Carrots
10 (“Gerber Carrots”)); id. at 79-81 (testifying that the “excellent source of vitamin A” and “excellent 11 source of vitamin C” label statements on Gerber Carrots are “truthful” and “not misleading”); id. at 12 87 (affirming that the “no added sugar” label statement on Gerber Nature Select 2nd Foods Fruit—13 Apples and Cherries is “truthful” and “not misleading”). The Court has no duty to scavenge for a 14 genuine dispute. See Bias v. Moynihan, 508 F.3d 1212, 1219 (9th Cir. 2007) (“A district court 15 does not have a duty to search for evidence that would create a factual dispute.”).

16 Bruton’s citation to Ogden v. Bumble Bee Foods, LLC, No. 5:12-CV-01828-LHK, 2014
17 WL 27527 (N.D. Cal. Jan. 2, 2014), is unpersuasive. In that case, the Court expressly declined to 18 “consider Bumble Bee’s passing reference to the reasonable consumer test” because “Bumble Bee
19 has not moved for summary judgment on the ground that Ogden cannot meet the substantive
20 elements of a UCL, FAL, or CLRA claim.” Id. at *9 n.9. Any further discussion by the Court 21 concerning the likelihood of deception in that case was therefore dicta. Id. Bruton’s reference to 22 Rubio v. Capital One Bank, 613 F.3d 1195 (9th Cir. 2010), fares no better. In Rubio, the Ninth 23 Circuit found that “evidence on how a reasonable consumer will understand the term ‘fixed rate’ is 24 available from the Federal Reserve Board of Governors,” and such evidence was sufficient to 25 survive a motion to dismiss. Id. at 1200. Unlike here, the evidence in Rubio was based on 26 “consumer testing” conducted by an independent “research firm.” Id. That testing included
27 “several rounds of interviews” with credit cardholding consumers. Id. at 1200-01; see also Truth
28

1 in Lending, 74 Fed. Reg. 5244, 5246-48 (Jan. 29, 2009) (describing the consumer testing that was
2 conducted in Rubio, including “a survey to conduct quantitative testing”).

3 In the instant case, by contrast, the best Bruton can muster is that “consumer surveys are not
4 required” under California law. Bruton Opp. at 23 (capitalization altered). True enough. See
5 Brockey, 107 Cal. App. 4th at 99. Consistent with California law, the Court today does not require 6 consumer surveys. Bruton, however, still must provide evidence “that a significant portion of the 7 general consuming public or of targeted consumers, acting reasonably in the circumstances, could 8 be misled” by Gerber’s nutrient content and sugar-related claims. Lavie, 105 Cal. App. 4th at 507.
9 Bruton has not done so. Though given the opportunity to offer evidence, Bruton and her experts
10 declined. As binding Ninth Circuit precedent makes clear, “a few isolated examples of actual 11 deception are insufficient” to survive summary judgment. Clemens, 534 F.3d at 1026. Where, as 12 here, a plaintiff offers one isolated example of deception—i.e., Bruton’s—summary judgment must 13 be granted. See Ries, 2013 WL 1287416, at *6-7 (granting summary judgment where plaintiffs 14 failed to offer “extrinsic evidence that a significant portion of the consuming public would be 15 confused by” AriZona Iced Tea’s “all natural” label statements); Martinez v. Welk Grp., Inc., 907 16 F. Supp. 2d 1123, 1141 (S.D. Cal. 2012) (granting summary judgment where, “aside from 17 Plaintiff’s bare allegations,” there was “no evidence to suggest that a reasonable consumer would 18 have expected or assumed that the entire [San Diego] Resort was, and has always been, free of any 19 mold, mildew, or water intrusion”); cf. Brockey, 107 Cal. App. 4th at 99-100 (finding that “the trier 20 of fact could conclude [defendant’s] activities were likely to mislead consumers” where the 21 evidence included expert testimony and showed that “a number of consumers were actually 22 deceived”).

23 For these reasons, the Court GRANTS Gerber’s Motion for Summary Judgment to the 24 extent Bruton’s causes of action are based on Gerber’s nutrient content and sugar-related claims 25 misleading reasonable consumers.
26
27
28

1 C. Whether Gerber’s Labels Are Unlawfully Misbranded

2 Bruton also alleges that Gerber’s sale of products containing the nutrient content and sugar-
 3 related claims is “unlawful” for purposes of the UCL because those products are “misbranded.”
 4 SAC ¶ 7-15, 114-24. “By proscribing any unlawful business practice, the UCL borrows violations
 5 of other laws and treats them as unlawful practices that the unfair competition law makes 6 independently actionable.” Alvarez v. Chevron Corp., 656 F.3d 925, 933 n.8 (9th Cir. 2011)
 7 (alteration and internal quotation marks omitted). “Virtually any law—federal, state or local—can 8 serve as a predicate for an action under [the UCL].” Smith v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co., 93 9 Cal. App. 4th 700, 718 (2001). “If a plaintiff cannot state a claim under the predicate law,
 10 however, [the UCL] claim also fails.” Stokes v. CitiMortgage, Inc., No. CV 14-00278 BRO SHX, 11 2014 WL 4359193, at *11 (C.D. Cal. Sept. 3, 2014) (internal quotation marks omitted).

12 In her SAC, Bruton attempts to bifurcate her lawsuit into two “facets”: misbranding and 13 deception. SAC ¶ 7. According to Bruton, all she “needs to show is that she bought an unlawful 14 product and was injured as a result.” Id. ¶ 11. A misbranding claim, Bruton alleges, “does not 15 sound in fraud.” Id.

16 While this may be true for some misbranding claims, such is not the case here. The very 17 next paragraph in Bruton’s SAC illustrates why her particular “misbranding” claims do in fact 18 sound in fraud: “nutrient content claims that may be helpful in making healthy choices with respect
 19 to products intended to be consumed by adults could in fact be misleading and harmful with respect
 20 to products intended to be consumed by infants and children under two years of age.” SAC ¶ 12 21 (emphasis added). As Bruton explains further, “Nutrient content claims on products intended to be 22 consumed by children under two are barred because the nutritional needs of children are very 23 different from those of adults, and thus such nutritional claims on infant and toddler food can be 24 highly misleading.” Id. ¶ 60 (emphasis added); accord Bruton MSJ at 5. In Bruton’s own words, 25 “FDA regulates nutrient content claims” precisely because “nutritional claims on infant and toddler 26 food can be highly misleading.” Bruton MSJ at 9 (emphasis added).³ The injury, then, caused by 27 ³ The preceding examples all involve Bruton’s misbranding allegations under 21 C.F.R.

 28 § 101.13(b)(3) concerning Gerber’s nutrient content claims, but the same is true with respect to

1 Gerber’s alleged misbranding is the same as the injury caused by Gerber’s alleged deception:
 2 consumers “paid a premium price” they otherwise would not have paid absent the label statements.
 3 SAC ¶ 121 (describing the injury Bruton suffered for purposes of her UCL unlawful claim).

4 Under these circumstances, the Court finds that Bruton’s UCL unlawful claims sound in 5 fraud and thus are subject to the reasonable consumer test. See Harmon v. Hilton Grp., PLC, 554
 6 F. App’x 634, 635 (9th Cir. 2014) (“UCL claims are governed by the ‘reasonable consumer
 7 standard,’ which requires evidence that ‘members of the public are likely to be deceived.’”
 8 (quoting Williams, 523 F.3d at 938)); see also Kane v. Chobani, Inc., No. 12-CV-02425-LHK, 9 2013 WL 5289253, at *6 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 19, 2013) (finding “the gravamen of Plaintiffs’ claims
 10 under the UCL’s unlawful, unfair, and fraud prongs is that Defendant’s labeling was deceptive” 11 and thus “was likely to deceive reasonable consumers”); cf. Wilson v. Frito-Lay N. Am., Inc., No.
 12 12-1586 SC, 2013 WL 1320468, at *5 (N.D. Cal. Apr. 1, 2013) (“[T]he rule is that plaintiffs need
 13 not satisfy Rule 9(b) as to the UCL’s unlawful prong when the basis of their claim does not sound 14 in fraud. However, when it does, and especially when a plaintiff alleges a unified course of 15 fraudulent conduct that forms the basis of their UCL claims, plaintiffs must plead the UCL claims
 16 with specificity.” (citing Vess v. Ciba-Geigy Corp., 317 F.3d 1097, 1105-06 (9th Cir. 2003))); 17 Durell v. Sharp Healthcare, 183 Cal. App. 4th 1350, 1355 (2010) (extending the “actual reliance”
 18 requirement for statutory standing to UCL unlawful claims where the “predicate unlawful conduct 19 is based on misrepresentations”). Because the Court has found no genuine dispute as to whether 20 Gerber’s label statements were misleading to reasonable consumers, see supra Part III.B, the Court
 21 necessarily must find no genuine dispute as to whether California law was violated on that very 22

23 Bruton’s misbranding allegations under 21 C.F.R. § 101.60(c)(2) concerning Gerber’s sugar-
 24 related claims. See SAC ¶ 76 (“Because consumers may reasonably be expected to regard terms 25 that represent that the food contains ‘no added sugar’ or sweeteners as indicating a product which 26 is low in calories or significantly reduced in calories, consumers are misled when foods that are not
 27 low-calorie as a matter of law are falsely represented, through the unlawful use of phrases like ‘no 28 added sugar’ that they are not allowed to bear due to their high calorific levels and absence of mandated disclaimer or disclosure statements.” (emphasis added)); id. ¶ 77 (“Defendant’s ‘no added sugar’ claims at issue in this Complaint are misleading and in violation of 21 C.F.R.
 § 101.60(c)(2) and California law, and the products at issue are misbranded as a matter of law.”
 (emphasis added)).

United States District Court
For the Northern District of California

1 basis. With no predicate violation on which to rely, Bruton’s UCL unlawful claim must fail. See
2 Stokes, 2014 WL 4359193, at *11.

3 Accordingly, the Court GRANTS Gerber’s Motion for Summary Judgment to the extent
4 Bruton’s causes of action are based on Gerber’s products being misbranded and therefore sold
5 unlawfully under the UCL. As a result, the Court DENIES Bruton’s Motion for Partial Summary
6 Judgment.⁴

7 IV. CONCLUSION

8 For the foregoing reasons, the Court hereby DENIES Bruton’s Motion for Partial Summary
9 Judgment and GRANTS Gerber’s Motion for Summary Judgment.

10 The Clerk shall close the case file.

11 IT IS SO ORDERED.

12 Dated: December 18, 2014

LUCY H. KOH
United States District Judge

13
14
15
16
17
18
19
20
21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28

⁴ The Court DENIES as moot Gerber’s evidentiary objections. See ECF No. 156; Gerber Reply at 14-15. Even if the challenged testimony were admissible, the Court would still grant summary judgment in Gerber’s favor.